

Soleen Ghahraman (USA) BSc, MPH in progress

My internship at the World Federation of Public Health Associations (WFPHA) HQ office in Geneva, Switzerland combined my interests in public health, nutrition, and oral health. I left inspired to pursue my Masters in Public Health, which I will complete in the next year. Alongside, I work in the pharmaceutical industry with the mission of helping improve patients' lives. I see the importance of integrating oral health to overall health and strategizing diet habits as an approach to optimize oral health. What attracts me to working with the Oral Health Working Group is my strong interest in increasing dental public health so people have the information and resources they need to stay healthy and maintain their oral health.
